Superiors reject Fr. Ed's plan to run for president

By Torrette Ordoñez, Inquirer General Counsel and Dona Piaz Bugas

MORE THAN HIS PREVIOUS FORAY INTO LOCAL POLITICS, Pangasinan Gov. Eddie Panlilio's bid for the country's highest office has elicited worried, angry and even outraged reactions from his superiors and fellow priests in the Catholic Church and from Church members.

San Fernando Archbishop Purificacion Antonio openly rejected Panlilio's plan to run for president and leave the priesthood.

"He is drifting from his original priestly mission. A priest is a servant of the city of God, not of the city of man," said Antonio, Panlilio's immediate superior when strongly objected when Panlilio, a priest for 25 years, ran for governor in 2007.

Ranjo Serrano, president of the parish pastoral council in Guzman town, said that while many Catholics in his hometown were not personally against Panlilio, they preferred that he return to the priesthood and "lead the laity in the struggle for good governance and moral leadership."

Panlilio formally offered himself as a candidate for president in 2010 at a launch event at the Bantayog ng mga Bayani (Monument of Heroes) park in

Quezon City yesterday. (See related story on Page A4.)

Lingayen-Dagupan Archbishop Oscar Cruz, a known critic of Panlilio, noted that Church law prohibited priests from running for public office in the first place.

"Which his supporters say that he is the only one qualified to run for president, it is impossible that among so many Filipinos there is no one principled, there is no one qualified to become president," Cruz said.

Crush Abu, Teodoro tells troops in send-off

By Terna Quinsanada

ZAMBOANGA CITY—DEFENSE SECRETARY Gilbert Teodoro Jr. yesterday deployed at least 1,000 more soldiers to boost anti-terror efforts in Basilan, citing a "golden opportunity" to strike at and stop a "severely weakened" Abu Sayyaf base the security situation gave critical in the run-up to the 2010 elections.

On a whirlwind visit to this city and neighboring Basilan, Teodoro called the troops behind a renewed push to quell the battle group responsible for kidnappings and attacks in parts of Mindanao.

He said it was vitally "essential" as a result of continuous government offensives in its areas of operation.

The message of the government is clear: We will not make compromises with terrorists," he told the troops during send-off rites yesterday afternoon at the Western Mindanao Command (Westerncom) headquarters here.

Teodoro and top military officials in Mindanao led the send-off for two Marine battalions and a battalion of the Philippine National Police Special

Palace: Premise wrong of survey question on Charter change

MANILA (PDI) — Yesterday's survey on the results of a 2008 survey conducted by the Commission on Elections (COMELEC) showed that 7 out of 10 Filipinos opposed any amendment to the Constitution that would extend the term of President

Macapagal-Arroyo beyond 2010. According to the survey, 75 percent of the respondents said they disagreed with a proposal to change the Constitution that would allow the Arroyo to remain in the country's top official after June 2010. Another 55 percent said they believed the survey was biased and they thought the Commission was biased against the Arroyo. Undersecretary Lito B. Espino, deputy presidential spokesman, stated that the survey was biased because the question on the survey was phrased, saying that the premise was wrong. "The problem with surveys, first of all, is the way the questions are asked. For instance, the subject in Charter change, and it [the] linked to the extension of the term of the President. The problem is wrong, so you get the wrong answer and the wrong result," Espino said. "Our government can afford risks."

The survey asked the respondents: "Do you for or against a Charter change that will allow President Macapagal-Arroyo to stay in the chair until the end of the Philippine term in 2010?"

For 1st time, media to get own copies of election returns

By Kristine L. Alano

MANILA (PDI) — For the first time, Philippine electronic news media groups will be getting official copies of election returns (ERs) off the premises using and creating machines to read voters' marks.

In previous elections, only the Commission on Elections (Comelec), its voters' center, Congress and major political parties got one of the seven copies of ERs manually prepared at the precinct level. Media organizations relied on the quick counts of watching groups to get a quick glimpse of election results.

But with the fast automated polls in 2010, members of the electronic news media will be watching election returns at official ERs directly from the precinct level. Under Republic Act No. 7290 or the 1993 Automated Laws, 10 copies of the ERs will be prepared at the Precinct Count Optical Scan machines.

Of the seven copies, six go to the media groups such as the "view of the precinct count machine."

Comelec Commission Executive Director said the ERs would be sent to the legitimate media groups in two batches. In the first batch, the Commission will send the results, eight copies, including Congress and the Comelec, will get printed ERs.

After the Board of Election Inspectors (BEI) shall have printed and submitted the first eight ERs to the representatives, within 22 copies will be printed for distribution to various media bodies, Espino said.

"That will come after the electronic media coverage," he added. Espino said the distribution of ERs to the media and other groups would balance the credibility of the election results and strengthen the confidence for the voters' participation.

"One purpose is to make it harder to change the results. This is a check and balance program," he said.

So far, the Commission has allowed the government to print Broadcasters' Election Returns (BERTs) in the form of television and radio networks, to get an ER copy for the use of its members. Other media outlets will also be allowed to get a print-out of the ERs, said Espino.

Comelec spokesman James Arce said, in an interview yesterday, that the law does not specify which media groups will get a copy.

"As long as they are in the precinct, they can get one," he said.

But since there will be over 80,000 precincts in the 2010 presidential and national elections, he acknowledged that it would be nearly impossible for media outlets to get one from each precinct.

Politics soils probe of death squads

NUGRALES DELMA BUTUTE

By Jeffrey M. Tapan
Davao City

FR. ANADO FIGARAL, WHO'S BEEN FIGHTING FOR THE LAST 33 years to put a stop to summary executions here, should have been ecstatic at the arrival of hundreds of students at the beaching early this month of "You Can Die Anytime," a book published by the New York-based Human Rights Watch that details the operations of the Davao Death Squad (DDS), supposedly a vigilante group.

But he wasn't happy. The new arrival amounted to the biggest loss might be coming—his policy was starting to drop a 10-year crusade against the murderous campings of what continues to be lawless vigilantes.

Nothing was unusual about some 100

students of the University of Southwestern

Philippines coming to the book launching at the Ateneo de Davao University except that they are all students of Ignacio Francisco Negrado.

"They had been told to attend the book launch and to bring us human rights,"

Supporters of Negrado's team along, meaning his claims with the Negrado's team could be checked.

Human rights advocates use the connection. It explained why the group of students was not intentionally sent to summary killings in the city, which has been blamed for the deaths of more than 100 suspected petty criminals, many of those buried in Davao.

Negrado's political network, Davao City Mayor Rodrigo Duterte, has reportedly denied involvement in the DDS.

"We, there are killings," he had told the Commission on Human Rights (CHR) at the start of its investigation of the DDS in March. "Two summary killings—this is not true."

"If there is any evidence that we are involved in the killings, I will submit my resignation at the end of the day, my resignation as the mayor of Davao City," he said.

Negrado, who is not his third and final term as governor, is expected to run for mayor of Davao City next year against Duterte's daughter Sara, whom the city's vice mayor.

Duterte may seek a congressional seat and this against Negrado's son and chief of staff, Rado.

Politically motivated?

Since the CHR conducted its investigation—concluding that the killing machine is being used by powerful city police units—not a law enforcement group that someone big was leading the agency.

People close to Duterte, including his daughter, saw police behind the investigation.

CHR Chair Jovito Salonga expressed disgust over the investigations.

"I don't like it. I categorically deny the claims that our investigation on the DDS operation is politically motivated and backed by Negrado. We are only doing this in pursuance of our mandate. All we want is to get to the bottom of this," he said.

Negrado brushed the talk as political Mach propaganda.

"We will get to the bottom of this as soon as possible. Issues like Mach propaganda because I have been out of the country all this time," he said.

Bain complains

And last week, a chairman at the Philippine City Jail filed criminal charges against Negrado, De Lima and several high-ranking police officers for taking him out of jail without a warrant on July 6.

Jonathan Bain, who was suspected of killing a policeman in the Garden City of Davao in 2005, said in a sworn statement that he was "delivered from jail, freed and unaccompanied, the [jail] program of releasing a convicted and dangerous inmate [Bain] from jail."

Bain said he was brought in a big cage in Davao City, where he was asked to provide the name of some groups of supposed DDS members.

One of those who interrogated him said it was Deputy Bain. He said he was not.

Deputy Bain, according to sources, was a suspect in the killing of Jerey Negrado, son of Ignacio Negrado, son of the city's mayor, in a semi-coordinated of Duterte's (son's) police and party [Negrado on Duterte's (son's) party].

Kenney: Mindanao war pulling RP down

DAVAO CITY—US Ambassador to the Philippines, Kristie Kenney, said peace in Mindanao was essential not only for the Philippines, but also for the United States.

Kenney, in a speech at a symposium of donors of the International Leadership Program for Young Muslim Leaders (OIPYML), said peace in Mindanao was essential not only for the Philippines, but also for the United States.

The OIPYML is a program indirectly funded by the US Agency for International Development (USAID).

Lasting peace

Philippine development, she said, is the humanitarian field at the Western Pacific Institute here. Dependence on the resolution of the Mindanao conflict and lasting peace in Mindanao.

"If the Mindanao situation is not resolved, our Mindanao is peaceful and prosperous, it will be like an anchor dragging the rest of the Philippines down," she said.

US AMBASSADOR Kristie Kenney circles a group with graduates of an internship program that was indirectly funded by the US government. Kenney addressed a homecoming of the graduates in Davao City.

"The Philippines will never see its great potential until Mindanao does. And that is important for America because the Philippines is one of our closest allies and partners," she added.

"For us to see a state of this nation not achieving its potential, not living in peace, a third of this nation unable to use their products to market, unable to see their young leaders progressing, it is so not only a great shame but for her, it is not good for America either," Kenney said.

She said the violence that regularly erupts through many parts of Mindanao is "also not good for the rest of our country."

Kenney said the violence that regularly erupts through many parts of Mindanao is "also not good for the rest of our country."

Development assistance

"We say that there are people that go off as we've seen recently across Mindanao is a bad day for all of us. So for us, Mindanao is incredibly important," Kenney said.

She said this was the reason the US government spent about two-thirds of its development assistance in Mindanao.

Possibilities

"In short, the possibilities for Mindanao are exceptional. The paths are also great," she said.

Kenney said the US government wants to see more American businesses in Mindanao.

She challenged the island's young leaders, referring to the US House of Representatives who have gathered here for the first time since 2003, to work hard to make Mindanao a better place.

"I don't want to tell you but say that this will be easy," Kenney told the young leaders.

Smugglers tagged in plot to oust sugar exec

By Carlo P. Gomez
Sagor Mindanao

DAVAO CITY—SUGAR PLANTERS and workers rallied behind Rafael Coscolluela, executive director of Regulatory Administration Board, who claims a group that emerged after eight years and which he says was part of a plot to oust Coscolluela as president.

Indigenous residents of the National Federation of Sugarcane Planters, said on Friday his group would oppose efforts to oust Coscolluela from his post as RAB administrator.

"We will continue to help defend Coscolluela in the struggle to get a new sugar smuggling," he said.

Rafael Coscolluela, a director of the Philippine Sugar Corp. and former member of the Sugar Board, said sugar smugglers might be after Coscolluela because he started to plug the loopholes in the movement of domestic and export sugar.

"Probably the smugglers are hating it. It is not as easy as it used to be to smuggle sugar now," he said.

When Coscolluela took over the post, he reported the anti-sugar smuggling task force, he said.

"Less (Coscolluela) had the guts to take on this additional work of heading the anti-smuggling task force, that really is the job of the Bureau of Customs," he said.

"The (Coscolluela) is a straight-forward person and I can reach for his integrity," Coscolluela said.

Coscolluela on Thursday said the publicity that attended the case against him in the Congressional committee has been a setback for him to continue his work.

"I suspect that this is part of a campaign to remove me from RAB because of my anti-smuggling stance," he said.

"We've apparently lost a few people," Coscolluela pointed out for the group.

He was accused of having accepted medical and farm equipment worth $50 million from an unnamed supplier when he was still bureau official.

He said he had no opportunity to defend himself publicly since he did not want to risk the life of the court by making the self-defense.

He, however, Mario Aguilera, said a pre-emptive move Thursday by filing a motion to quash the information against him.

THE MERGER THAT IS LAKAS KAMPI CMD

"Gynex and detractors tried to paint gynex as the cancellation of the 2010 elections," said President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo, but the merger of Lakas CMD and Kampo political parties was a clear message about her "administration's resolve and determination to push through with the upcoming national and local elections."

In a speech made during the merger at the Manila Hotel, she said that the party will be a mission and guarantee for the success of the 2010 general elections during 2010, emphasizing its goal of victory in the context of clean and credible elections.

To the thousands of city regions, congressmen, and governors belonging to the unified political party, the President stressed that all must strive for victory not just for the party itself, but also for the entire nation. This includes the implementation of sweeping electoral reforms, especially automation, especially those in our administrative 10-point agenda."

The President shook hands with the attendees to the merger celebration, and exchanged brief notes with fellow party members. PMSA also thanked the members of the winning parties for their "willingness to the shared mission to do what is right not only for the administrator's political cause but also for the nation."

"I need you all with me" was her rallying cry, underlining the message that the final purposes of the Lakas Kampi CMD were more political harmony and, more importantly, the protection of quality services to the Filipino people. She acknowledged that she needed the consolidated party's utmost best and efforts in the building of a national economy that would be able to withstand the continuing global economic crisis, and that these united goals would only be reached by "being as one, acting as one, winning as one."

"Hardly we will be overwhelmed in our thinking and systems but I would hope that all of us will be disciplined enough to support the party itself."

From now on, PMSA believes that it will be easier and more productive to have long-term projects, services and investments in the areas where local government officials will no longer be at odds with higher ranking officials, as this means that the change of command and responsibility will run smoothly. There will also be a mechanism for reconciliation at all, if necessary, the adjudication of disputes at the local level.

LAKAS KAMPI CMD ECONOMIC MISSIONS AND AGENDAS
Although there was much protest coming in the wake of the implementation of Value-Added Tax (VAT), it has become a fraction of the Arroyo administration's continuing economic mission.

Where the VAT goes

• Infrastructure that links back the poorest provinces of the Philippines, such as those in the Visayas, to the rest of the country.

• Strong investor confidence that the exchange rate back down to the mid-PHMS levels from highs of PHMS and so on. This has greatly helped to keep inflation rates down.

fuel efforts such as funds to change jeepneys over from diesel-based engines to LPG, CNG or bi-fuel units.

- Programs for senior citizens who are not being covered by SSS or the GDS.
- Relief and relief programs during times of natural disasters, especially during typhoon season.
- Loans for farmers and fisherfolk and their families, ensuring the flow of sufficiency in food, as well as improved irrigation and resource management.

Without initiative may not be considered as a means of economic stimulus, but the administration has proven that a well-managed national social welfare program can help lift up the poor.

With the strengthening of the country's roads and transportation systems come greater benefits to the national economy. The continuing implementation of the RORO (Roll On Roll Off) transport systems has resulted in less in transport costs, less time, and more savings, resulting more competitive prices and increased profits for all players.

Investments in education will mean that the country meets the rewards of an increasingly globalized competitive environment, providing more stimulus to the economy. The graduates of government-sponsored technical and vocational courses are more number in the millions and they are now able to support themselves and their families as well as contribute to the nation as a whole.

The business groups and civil society are encouraged to keep doing their share as the country strives towards a socially equitable, economically vibrant balance of interests that can only benefit all Filipinos.

Fiba probe into SBP-BAP row gets going

IN Huddle

Beth Geller

TOURNEY IN the first day on by the Fiba's special three men committee composed of Carl Ching, Marley...

The representatives from the SBP and the BAP are scheduled to leave today for the long journey to Geneva, Switzerland...

However, a source who's alleged to have seen a report that the Swiss Embassy here in Manila would not be able to issue visas to SBP officials (Pangasinan Pines) and Christian...

The BAP had applied for visas since a letterhead in the day and my colleague, adding that some traveling to Switzerland and England are required to secure individual visas.

My colleague also related that the members of the SBP group had filed their applications two days ahead of the SBP and had gotten them in time for their arrival heading to Geneva.

He said the SBP had a change of heart in the last minute and has decided to attend the hearing.

"SBP will be represented by chairman Marley, Vice-Chair Rido Noyes, executive director Beth Geller and legal counsel (Manila) Associates," the source said.

But who knows, there's even a chance that MVP SBP president Rido Noyes might decide to join the group, just to be able to personally meet and a certain high-ranking Fiba official.

Given that same day my colleague and I confirmed that the BAP group had indeed encountered problems at the Swiss Embassy and would not be able to get their visas in time for the first hearing.

While there are reports that only SBP legal counsel from Marley would be able to make it to Geneva, a source within the high-ranking government officials told me that and Villaluna could not pull some strings to expedite the processing of their visas.

My colleague said he expects a showdown in Geneva.

"But it will not be between the SBP and the BAP," he said with a wink.

Basically, I don't feel that the Philippines will be grounded. Should there be a solid decision, it will probably be all for the good of Philippine basketball.

The Filipino men and women who successfully scaled the summit of Mount Everest got an unexpected windfall two years after the feat.

And by Len Duralde, the first Filipino to reach the world's highest peak, the group was honored during the 50th anniversary celebration of Everest's conquest at the Mount Everest 50th Anniversary.

As special guests of the affair, the mountaineers may have wanted to be awarded a simple plaque or trophy, but they will be getting a lot more than that when they stepped in.

Shaw's new coaching was longer than, you see, had faced the previous PSC chair Rido Noyes, to meet what Noyes described as a "world-class sports organization" in the Philippines.

For the Basco 'bakal' boys

Film turns into advocacy

EVEN WHEN he was studying at Asian Institute of Management, entrepreneur Albert Almendarez already wanted to produce a full-length movie.

The ADM graduate then saw "Disingular Directors for the Philippine Movie Industry" The informed that a new business model combining the best of mainstream and independent filmmaking is needed for the Philippine film industry.

And so was born his full-length independent "Basco: Bakal Boys," about Basco children who live in poverty in the murky streets of Manila. But he got pieces of metal they can sell for a living.

The film is a finalist in the Cinemalaya Independent Film Festival and will have its debut tonight at 6, at CIP-United Theatres. Veteran actress Gina Pareño leads the cast, which includes real kids from Basco. Fashion Jewer is director and screenplay writer. He also wrote the award-winning film "Babalasas"
 "Treskay" and "Sweet Child."

Almendarez admits that initially, aside from being a director, actor and film and film. Agente Productions, he was looking at the movie as business venture.

He had no idea it would evolve into a full-blown advocacy for him, with

ADOLFO Timoteo

By Elly M. Corbillo
 Contributor

IF ESTEEMED Filipino flamenco guitar player and radar Adolfo Timoteo could have his way, he'd come home and live in the Philippines.

But it is his love of guitar music and flamenco that keeps him in Spain. Here, he leaves his craft and studio in our. He has been living in the outskirts of Madrid for 25 years now, where he has been invited to a bar twice a week in his home of 10 years in Puerto Villaverde de la Torre, Guadalajara, just outside the city.

"I missed on my time in Madrid but not in the city," he said. The twice home he himself built and designed to the music of flamenco, down to the placement of tiles and glancing of tiles, is a true reflection of his love for the city.

KING OF POP Michael Jackson

Last July 4-16, SM City North EDSA paid tribute to the Greatest Performer who ever lived, The King of Pop - Michael Jackson. At the Atrium in The Block, a huge new historical artwork of Michael Jackson were asked to honor their words and messages of affection. This was the first-ever tribute wall put up by a mall and SM City was the first mall to do so. The artwork is currently on display with requests of sometimes from fans of the King of Pop. Fans of Michael Jackson can visit the tribute wall and see there as well.
